Bestselling food writer Mark Bittman (0) the case that eating at home is good for your health, good for your family and, with the right approach, far 1 than you think.

Just two generations ago, preparing meals was as much a part of life as eating. Now we've 2 what is perhaps our best excuse to get together and spend time with the people we love – mealtime.

The love of food is everywhere. There are cooking 3 and celebrity chefs with TV shows, and the media are stuffed with an endless flow of blogs, demos and reviews. So why do so many of us still eat tons of processed food, the stuff that is correctly 4 junk and should really carry warning labels?

It's not because fresh 5 are hard to come by. Supermarkets offer more variety than ever. Nor is it for the lack of information. There are 6 of recipes, how-to videos and cooking classes available to anyone who has a computer, smartphone or television. If anything, the amount of information is enormous.

And yet we aren't cooking. We are either eating out or ordering in, and we don't sit down or we do, but we hurry.

7 preparing – and consuming – food be a source of comfort, pride, health, well-being, relaxation, sociability? And I'm 8 about simple, easy, everyday meals. We need to teach people to cook food that's good enough to share with family, friends and, if you must, on Instagram. Because not cooking is a big mistake — and it's one that's costing us money, good times, control, peace and, yes, vastly better health.

Task 2

Read the text about Walt Disney. Some words are missing. Choose the best word from the list for each gap (9-16). Use only ONE word for each space. There are TWO extra words which you do not need to use. Write your answers in the boxes after the text. There is an example (0) at the beginning.

Did you know that....

Walt Disney was anti facial hair. Well, with one exception. It took 0 60 years, but, as of this year, employees at Walt Disney’s two U.S. theme parks can 9 show up at work with a stylish beard or goatee (but only 10 they are “neat, polished and professional” according to the official memo). However, at Disneyland in the 50s and 60s, even guests 11 facial hair, not to mention long-haired hippies, 12 turned away because they unfortunately failed to meet the standards of Disneyland’s 13 code. Even Jim McGuinn, the future frontman of The Byrds, was once refused to enter for 14 a provocative Beatle cut. The company eventually changed this policy, and allowed all hairy visitors to enjoy “The Happiest Place on Earth”. Now, the funny 15 standard: Think of any picture of Walt Disney that you 16 ever seen. What exists in almost all of them? A moustache.

Lacking New Year motivation?

There is always some science to explain it!

I recently wrote a post about my aims and goals for 2015, and beside my laptop there is a serious plan of __0 (act)__ for me for the upcoming year. The house is quiet and peaceful; sun is shining through the window. No __17 (distract)__, no excuses, I am ready and prepared for action..... Right? WRONG!

I am lacking some very important factors.... energy, __18 (create)__ and motivation!

In fact I am standing on the peak of __19 (disappoint)__ and __20 (fail)__. It is half way through the second week “back to work/school/life” after Christmas and I am pretty sure I am not alone. Before I give up on myself and my abilities, tear the plans and burn the diaries, I have decided on a __21 (differ)__ approach.

I will arm myself with __22 (know)__, because understanding why I feel like this will help me to accept it and help me to pass through it, so I won’t end up “throwing the baby out with the bath water”.
